EBAY 1Q26: Defying gravity, but peak growth debate lingers

Another massive GMV print — 14% FxN growth, led by the US segment growing 27%. This top-line strength is incredible to see. However, even with a raise on the GMV outlook, the stock will have to contend with concerns of peak growth. Within our eCommerce coverage, EBAY's tough comp dynamic is the toughest as we enter the back-half of 2026 and the lack of margin upside will also create some debate on mix and flow-through. To be fair, we think management is doing the right thing by recycling GMV strength and pulling forward investment priorities, particularly given some of this momentum is temporary — but it makes for a tough near-term set-up as the EPS growth algorithm remains largely unchanged despite solid results.

Strength to strength. GMV beat us by ~1ppt and the Q2 outlook of 8-10% FxN growth Y/Y offered some upside. To EBAY's credit, the company saw broad-based strength across categories and strategic efforts. Focus Category growth of 24%, and double-digit growth in C2C and Re-Commerce. Management also highlighted 'balanced' growth across Buyers, Sold Items, and ASP in the US business, which is important as we think about durability.

Peak growth debate. Q2 guidance is an early signal of EBAY starting to 'comp the comp', but the challenge grows in 2H. We expect peak growth concerns to stick, and investors will continue to question what 'normal' looks like as certain categories moderate (i.e., Collectibles). For the year, we now model 8.5% FxN growth (8% organic with 50bps Depop tailwind), ahead of guidance of 7-7.5%. In the out-years, we nudge up in the 4-5% range.

Finding a balance. EBIT growth was strong in 1Q26 (+18% Y/Y) but is expected to moderate (6-10% for 2Q26). Management is reinvesting behind a variety of LT opportunities — focus categories, Live, Vehicles, AI functionality, and marketing. Our nitpick is transaction losses, but this comes with shipping and payments, which are good for the marketplace.

Investment Implications

Modest raise to our GMV and EBIT expectations, with our out-year EPS growth similar.

EXHIBIT 3: eBay's updated framework for 2026.*FY'26 Financial Commentary (ex. Pending Depop Acquisition)

GMV & Revenue	• GMV growth between 7.0% and 7.5% on a Y/Y FXN basis • At current rates, FX would represent a tailwind of ~150 bps to spot GMV growth • Revenue growth in-line to slightly ahead of GMV on a Y/Y FXN basis • FX to represent a tailwind of ~140 bps to spot revenue growth
Non-GAAP Op. Income	• Non-GAAP operating income growth between 9% and 11% Y/Y⁽¹⁾ • Contemplates balanced reinvestments in our strategic priorities and emerging growth vectors, with strong flow-through to the bottom line
Non-GAAP EPS	• Non-GAAP earnings per share growth⁽¹⁾ to be relatively in-line with Y/Y non-GAAP Operating Income growth⁽¹⁾ • Expect lower cash balance and higher interest expense to pressure net interest and other Y/Y, partially offsetting share repurchases tailwind • Non-GAAP effective tax rate assumption of 17.5% in FY'26, up from 16.5% in FY'25
Capital Allocation	• Targeting ~$2B of share repurchases in FY'26 • Declared Q2'26 cash dividend of $0.31 per share • FY'26 capital return target in-line with our stated framework (90-100% of normalized FCF)

EXHIBIT 4: Updated expected impact from Depop acquisition expected to close by the end of 3Q'26.*Updated Expected Impact From Depop Acquisition

Expected to close by the end of Q3'26

Given the updated timeline, we expect the following impacts:FY'26 Financial Impact

- Depop would contribute ~1 percentage point to Y/Y FXN GMV growth in FY'26 on a consolidated basis
- Expect a low-single-digit headwind to the 9% to 11% Y/Y non-GAAP operating income growth forecasted for FY'26, including integration costs and planned investments
- Low-single-digit dilution to expected Y/Y non-GAAP earnings per share growth in FY'26, with the impact modestly higher than operating income dilution due to the foregone interest income from the cash used for this transaction

Path to Accretion

- On a consolidated basis, including synergies, we expect Depop to become accretive to non-GAAP operating income in 2028

Long-Term Value Creation

- Highly confident this acquisition will be meaningfully accretive to operating income and EPS growth over the long-term
- Further reinforces eBay's customer value proposition in a rapidly evolving Recommerce landscape

VALUATION METHODOLOGYeBay Inc

We value eBay using a 50/50 combination of NTMP/E multiple of 17.5x Non-GAAP EPS and a DCF using a WACC of 10.0% and a terminal growth rate of 2%. Our Price Target of $95 is set on a fully diluted basis. We treat SBC as a cash expense for the purposes of DCF, and we also consider eBay's equity stakes. eBay is a diversified eCommerce marketplace, and we benchmark valuation to comparable peers across eCommerce, Internet, and eBay's own history.

RISKSeBay IncUpside Risks*

- eBay's Focus Category strategy and horizontal marketplace improvements drive continued acceleration in GMV growth.
- eBay benefits from tariffs and trade-down as consumers look for local, value-oriented alternatives; GMV accelerates and the demand sticks given improvements in the shopping experience across core categories.
- Buyer growth continues, with enthusiast buyers starting to grow; eBay finds success with younger consumers, leveraging its position as a scaled re-commerce player and taking share from niche marketplaces.
- GMV momentum drives operating leverage and margin upside; advertising revenue improves marketplace profitability.
- Healthy FCF ramp as one-off factors normalize in 2026; management leans into capital return, consistently reducing share count.

Downside Risks

- eBay's market share erodes further on increased competition and/or eBay's inability to re-vitalize the marketplace with its focus category approach.
- Pricing initiatives in the UK create a bigger margin headwind than anticipated and/or eBay rolls out similar changes in other markets that undercut future margin expectations; the company is unable to successfully reintroduce a buyer fee in UK C2C without driving churn.
- Macro conditions worsen, led by onerous tariff policy and weaker consumer confidence; GMV growth misses expectations and buyer churn accelerates
- Lower for longer outlook on margins given volume de-leverage and reinvestment.
- Smaller than anticipated buyback program.

- Advertising uptake slows as GMV growth comes under pressure.
